[For the Spirit.] THE ANCHOR. BY S. J. DEVAUL.

"Faith is an anchor to the sail, both sure and leadfast; it reacheth in the vale where Christ, the In faith the farmer tills the ground,

He plows, he sows, he resps, The fruitful tree he digs around, His flocks and herds he keeps. In faith, a vineyard too he plants, He watcheth it with care:

He sees the vine grow up and branch. He prunes and stakes it there. In faith, each day his labor ends,

He to his home repairs; He joins, in song, with dear, kind friends, Then offers up his prayers. In faith, he to his couch retires. And gives himself to sleep;

In "light winged dreams" his soul aspires

To things divinely sweet. In faith, he rises in the morn, With joyous, happy heart; With cheerfulness his tasks perform,

His sorrows all depart. He hopes that when his days shall end, A just reward be given, His happy spirit then shall blend

Among the just in Heaven.

By faith, the Hebrews crossed the sea, When Pharnoh's host was strong; From bondage they at last were free, Then sang a joyful song. And so, through life, whate'er our lot,

Whate'er our labors be, Thus let us hope for freedom bought, By Christ on Calvary. Hope is an anchor so the soul,

It reacheth in the vale; It will our troubles all control, And sanctify the gale.

"Hope looks beyond the bounds of time; When what we now deplore, Shall rise in full, immertal prime. And bloom to fade no more."
